

Bond Top Tips!

- Opt for a Tangle Teezer hair brush, these are best for extensions and can be used when the hair is wet or dry. The variation in teeth heights means the brush glides over the bonds and detangles too. (As seen on BBC Dragons Den) Both Original and Compact Stylers are available to purchase.
- If your hair seems to go matted or looks as if it's been back-combed all of a sudden then it's down to product. Your extensions don't like something you're putting on it, try changing your routine. We always recommend you use only Bond Hair shampoo, conditioner and Protein Spray to ensure your extensions stay in top condition and are easy to maintain.
- Try Moroccan Oil to give your hair a treat. Apply a 5p piece amount to towel-dried hair but only through mid lengths and ends, avoid the bonds when using oil.
- We understand extensions can be addictive but bond recommends having your natural hair cut in-between sets. Your own hair requires regular trims to ensure healthy growth.
- Do you have fine hair, or hair shoulder-length or longer? You may not need a full head of extensions. Speak to your technician about adding length and/or volume with a 1/2 or 3/4 head application, this means less bonds in the hair, easier to manage and less cost too!

For more FAQ's please visit bondhair.com/faq

bondhairTM
keratin bonded extensions

Aftercare Guidelines

*Human hair extensions are a rare and natural commodity therefore the quality cannot be 100% guaranteed. Careful aftercare and correct products are essential to maintain the quality of your hair. Refunds are not given when extensions have matted, fallen out or changed from their original form if this is down to poor aftercare or not opting to use approved bond hair aftercare products.

bondhairTM
keratin bonded extensions

07825 776 960 | fae@bondhair.com
www.bondhair.com

Thank you for choosing Bond Hair

Now that you've made an investment in your hair we wanted to guide you on how to take care of your extensions and guide you to ensure you keep them in top condition.

Do's

- Tie hair extensions up when sleeping. Try a loose plait down one side, or a loose ponytail or tie into two plaits
- Use a Tangle Teezer or soft bristle brush such as Denman
- Use Bond's Protein Spray on towel dried hair to add essential moisture. You can also spray onto dry/styled hair to improve and maintain the condition of the hair
- Wash in an upright position such as in the shower
- Pat hair dry following washing, divide into sections to blow-dry and straighten/curl
- Use your usual heat-defence spray and serums on the mid-lengths and ends of the hair but not near bonds

Don'ts

- Don't go to bed with wet hair, always dry the extensions paying careful attention to drying the root area and around the bonds
- Don't use brushes that have teeth with balls at the tip, these can snag the hair and cause it to shed
- Don't get conditioner on the root area or on the keratin bonds, this could cause them to soften and slip out
- Don't use oil-based product anywhere near the bonds
- Don't wash hair laying down in the bath or tip the head upside down to wash as this could tangle the long hair

Shampoo Routine

- Wash 2-3 times per week ideally, don't allow roots to get greasy, nor should you over-wash the hair. Any excessive moisture can cause the bonds to soften and hair to shed over time
- Try to wash the extensions in lukewarm or cool water, not boiling hot
- Gently wash hair as normal, using the shampoo to massage the roots getting in between the bonds
- Use light downward motions to distribute shampoo down through the ends of the hair
- Be sure to rinse hair thoroughly
- Don't rub or twist the hair or pile it up on your hair as this could cause it to tangle
- Squeeze excess moisture from the hair and pat dry with a towel

Condition Routine

- Apply conditioner throughout mid-lengths and ends and leave for several minutes to allow hair to absorb
- Avoid the bonds when applying conditioner
- Always use your bond protein spray and a heat-defence spray after gently towel-drying the lengths of the hair
- If hair feels dry try a deep-conditioning mask or oil treatment, again ensuring you avoid the bonds

Removing extensions

Bond recommends you have your extensions removed after 12 weeks due to the bonds growing down with your natural hair. Bonds need to therefore be replaced to avoid matting or damage occurring. Pre-bonded extensions should always be removed by a trained professional and you should never attempt removal yourself.

Common Questions

Q: My hair is itching, why?

A: Your head may take a few days to get used to the new extensions, however if you're finding your scalp itchy it's likely you're not rinsing product from your hair sufficiently. Ensure you rinse all shampoo and conditioner out fully when washing.

Q: Can I colour my extensions?

A: Bond does not recommend colouring your extensions as this can reduce the overall quality and longevity of the extensions. You can tone the human hair but this is best carried out in a salon environment. Pre-bonded extensions are processed therefore additional tinting is not advised.

Q: I have blonde hair, can I colour my roots?

A: Yes, the bonds are usually not fitted high up in the head meaning your T-section is free for colouring when your roots need it. Be sure to avoid the bonds with bleach and colour.

Q: I've lost a bond, what should I do?

A: Losing a few bonds is normal. Some lose 5-10 in the first few weeks, many lose zero in the entire 12 weeks. It depends on many factors including oils in your natural hair, products and brushes you use, how you care for the hair and how fine your natural hair is. If you lose a couple of bonds do not panic, you will only need to consider a 'top-up' appointment if you lose 20+ and find the hair is looking 'gappy' in places.

Q: I've lost a bond and it looks like some of my hair is attached

A: Even with no extensions in, most people lose up to 100 hairs per day through brushing etc. Wearing extensions is no different, your natural hair will continue its typical shedding cycle, therefore you may find you lose the odd bond which has come away with your natural hair. A few strands of hair sprouting out the top is normal, but if you have any concerns please contact your technician for a free check-up.